This is summent in the season were the season what later than the average date for light frost, but the killing frosts which occurred in many localities on the 39th and were general throughout the state this morning are about a week in advance of the average date for killing frosts in Kennicky. The westher conditions desembled were unfavorable to such crops as yet remain unharvested, their greatest need being heavy rains.

The greater portion of the coro has already been cut, but owing to deriments to its growth earlier in the season, a considerable portion of it was late in maturing, and was therefore exposed to the unfavorable conditions which have prevailed during the greater part of the past month. In many localities correspondents report that the late fields are withering ten days too soon, and that the dry weather has prevented the ears from filling. The greater portion of the tobacco crop was cut and housed before the first frost, but in some counties, where the unfavorable weather conditions caused the transplanting to be late, considerable portions of it were still in the fields, and serious damage resulted in such cases. A few consepondents state that fully one-fitting of the crop is yet under any destroyed by the frost. This does not represent anything like proper proposition for the entire state, and the portion of the crop exposed to damage from frost, as compared with the entire crop, was exceedingly small.
